BRITISH CREW WARNED BY CAPTAINS THAT MUTINY WOULD MEAN IMMEDIATE DISASTER.

DEBATE SHIP'S STATUS

State Department May Consider Vessel A Prize of War in Which Case It Will Probably Be Sunk by Germans.

Old Point Comfort, Va., Feb. 2.—How the captured British Appam was lined with bombs which could be touched off by the German prize crew at any sign of an uprising among her officers and crew, was told by persons of the ship to Quarantine Officer McCarty and he related the story today.

"I was certainly glad to complete my tour of the Appam," said Dr. McCarty, "I have no desire to remain in such close proximity to bombs."

I was on that boat. According to stories told me by passengers, many bombs are planted about the ship and all of them can be exploded by the touching of a secret button.

British Crew Warned.

"The bombs were placed by Germans immediately after they took possession of the boat," the Appam's commander, Captain Harrison, was warned that any attempt to overpower the prize crew, would result in the ship being blown up without further notice.

"I have had a long talk with Captain Harrison and he feels he acted wisely in not attempting to resist the prize crew. All he can do is to keep the ship in the highest terms of the treatment the Germans have accorded them."

"Captain Harrison told me that the Appam, disguised as a tramp steamer, was sighted by the prize crew on the night of the Appam's capture, a day before she attempted to effect her escape. She would play in and out, far and near from the Appam, and so disconcerting was her appearance that the prize crew could not get a clear shot at her. The Appam's crew, however, were told to keep the ship as close to the Appam as possible, and to keep the Appam as close to the Appam as possible, and to keep the Appam as close to the Appam as possible."

After firing a shot over the bow, the Appam, dropping her false foremast, disclosing a battery of guns, several Germans boarded the Appam, and the prize crew, many of whom had become frightened and were adjusting life belts, that there was no danger. The Appam would be harmed, the Germans said, as long as there was no resistance.

"They were regular toffs," said one of the English officers. This was his way of designating the Germans as gentlemen. The Appam's crew, however, were told to keep the ship as close to the Appam as possible, and to keep the Appam as close to the Appam as possible, and to keep the Appam as close to the Appam as possible."

While some of the German seamen on the Appam wear caps marked "Germany," others wear caps marked "United States." The Appam's crew, however, were told to keep the ship as close to the Appam as possible, and to keep the Appam as close to the Appam as possible, and to keep the Appam as close to the Appam as possible."

"The Appam's crew, however, were told to keep the ship as close to the Appam as possible, and to keep the Appam as close to the Appam as possible, and to keep the Appam as close to the Appam as possible."

PRESIDENT DELIVERS PREPAREDNESS PLEA TO KANSANS TODAY

Is Introduced by Governor Capper, Republican, Who Gives Assurance of Kansas Patriotism.

Topeka, Feb. 2.—President Wilson today reached Topeka, the westernmost turning point in his "preparedness" tour. The presidential salute boomed out as he and Mrs. Wilson, defying zero weather by riding in open cars, drove from the station to the residence of Governor Capper, escorted by a battalion of state troops.

Most of Topeka's 50,000 population lined the packed streets and cheered as the president passed. It was the first time during his present tour Mr. Wilson participated in a long parade. This lasted forty-five minutes.

Guests of Governor Capper.

At Governor Capper's home the president stood on the porch for a moment and waved his hat to the crowd. With Mrs. Wilson, Secretary Tumulty and Dr. Grayson, the White House physician, he then went inside for luncheon as the guest of the governor, who is a republican and not in accord with the administration's preparedness portion. Governor Capper introduced the president to the 6,000 gathered in the municipal auditorium, praised him for keeping the United States out of war, and said that the president's visit was in accord with the program of war armament. He continued:

"We welcome the fullest discussion. Governor Capper declared the president had spoken for peace and we would speak for it. He has steadfastly kept us out of the terrible conflict in Europe. He has sat on the hottest lid that has seared any president since Lincoln. He has refused to armament this day. We Kansans all are for President Wilson—and for Mrs. Wilson, too."

"We are not a warlike people. We are deeply and intensely patriotic. We are not afraid to fight if we must, but we hope necessity will never arise, and we pray we shall not be led into temptation."

"For one thing it may be necessary," the president said in his speech with an emphatic gesture, "to use the forces of the United States to enforce the rights of American citizens everywhere to enjoy the rights of international law. America is not going to abide the habit of continual neglect of those rights."

Arrives at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 2.—President Wilson arrived here today at 4:45 a. m., enroute from Des Moines, Iowa, where he spent the night. He made two addresses this afternoon. He left here at 8:12 a. m. on a special Santa Fe train. There was a small crowd at the station but they were unable to see the president, as he was still asleep.

STILL HOLD SUSPECT IN BUFFALO TRAGEDY

Teiper Still Admits Revolver Found Near Scene of Crime In His Possession.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 2.—John Edward Teiper, detained in connection with the Orchard Park tragedy, admits the ownership of the revolver found in the five-car pile-up, according to an announcement by District Attorney Dudley at noon today. He said he bought the weapon ten days ago and at first denied ownership. The admission came after the ownership had been traced to him.

When asked when he expected an arrest to be made in the case, the district attorney said he would take up the case this afternoon. Meanwhile Teiper is detained at police headquarters where he was taken directly from the cemetery, where the bodies of his mother and brother, victims of the tragedy, were laid to rest. Officers never left Teiper's side during services at the church and at the grave.

London, Feb. 2.—According to a statement made by authorities here today, Brigadier Taylor, detained here on the charge of having failed to register as an alien enemy, has made a confession to the effect that he had been in a German military attaché at Washington, organized the plans for blowing up the Welland canal.

THE GIRL, WRONGED, PUTS BABE ON STEPS OF GOOD MAN'S HOME

LaCrosse Man Finds Child in Shoebox and Pathetic Note, "Love Him for Me."

La Crosse, Feb. 2.—Rising in the early hours of the morning in answer to a continuous ringing of the doorbell, Jack H. Hengster, a 30-year-old man, found a baby boy about ten days old. The child was warmly wrapped and well, though not extensively dressed. When the baby was lifted from its bed, out of the wrappings dropped a note, a typewritten note. It said:

"If you won't please take my baby? It nearly breaks my heart to think of having to part with him, but what shall I do? I have noticed you many times. You always look so neat and so pleasant, and as if you could be the most loving father. So won't you take him from me and love him for me? I have never gone wrong before, and this once has caused me him. Oh, why is it? I love him so."

"You never need worry over his upbringing, because we both come from honest, good parents, and his father, as well as myself, are wealthy and strong."

"I am talking to you from the very bottom of my aching heart. Won't you please keep him and please don't make him any more public than you can help. Will leave this city in a few days, never to return again."

"God bless you and keep him for my sake."

(Signed) A heart-broken mother.

The Hengsters have no children. The babe was taken to St. Anne's maternity home, and is being cared for pending a disposition of its case. Hengster asked if he could adopt the child, Mr. Hengster said:

"We haven't decided about keeping him. We sent him to the maternity home, but it is hard to find proper food for them all of a sudden, you know. He's a might cute, sturdy little chap, but one doesn't decide those things on the spur of the moment, you know."

BERNSTORFF GETS ORDERS ON LUSITANIA

GERMAN GOVERNMENT SENDS NEW INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO PENDING SETTLEMENT.

SITUATION IS HOPEFUL

Berlin Reports That There is "Reasonable Hope for Positive Understanding" as Result of Latest Move.

Berlin, Feb. 2.—Instructions have been sent by the German government to Ambassador Von Bernstorff of Washington of such a nature as to give "reasonable hope for a positive understanding" concerning the Lusitania affair. It was an announcement today.

The announcement, which is of a semi-official nature, is said by the Overseas News Agency to have been made "in connection with alarming English reports about the nature of German-American relations." The text of the statement is given by the News Agency as follows:

"It is true that on Saturday, January 29, telegraphic reports from the German ambassador at Washington arrived at Berlin showing that up to that time it had been impossible to adjust the Lusitania case in a manner satisfactory to both sides by friendly verbal exchanges of views. On Tuesday instructions were transmitted by telegraph to the German ambassador, which give reasonable hope for a positive understanding."

Confirmed in London.

London, Feb. 2.—A Reuter dispatch from Berlin said the German government yesterday sent telegraphic instructions to Ambassador Bernstorff at Washington which, it had, will lead to a final understanding between Germany and the United States concerning the Lusitania affair. It is admitted semi-officially in Berlin, the message adds, that on January 29 a cablegram was received showing that up to that time no satisfactory agreement had been reached.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST FEARS MERCURY RISE

Worst Blizzard in Twenty-three Years to Be Followed by Catastrophe if Warmer Weather Comes.

Seattle, Feb. 2.—Rising temperature throughout the Pacific northwest today indicated an abatement of the storm which in eastern Washington called the worst blizzard in twenty-three years, but apprehension was felt that a quick change in the weather, with probable accompanying avalanches in the mountains and floods in the valleys, would do great damage.

No overland train has arrived since 7 p. m. yesterday. The Great Northern and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroads are not moving trains on their mountain divisions. The Northern Pacific is working with snowplows.

Eighteen inches of snow on the ground stopped street car traffic early today, and caused considerable delay and crippled business and manufacturing.

Trains Snowbound.

Ellensburg, Feb. 2.—The heaviest snowfall in thirty years has blocked all trains across the Cascade mountains. Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul trains are laid up in division after division. No Great Northern trains are in the mountains.

Four west-bound Northern Pacific trains are in the local yards and will be turned back and sent east. Several morning trains of the Northern are snowbound at Cle Elum. East-bound No. 4 train was snowed in one thousand yards from the station. By using powerful engines, the train was dragged in, one hour later.

Fishermen Die.

Juneau, Alaska, Feb. 2.—Eleven men perished in the recent storm, according to advices received here today. They were on a motor launch, and members of crews on fishing schooners that were wrecked.

DENY ZEPPELIN RAID AN ACT OF REPRISAL FOR BARALONG LOSS

Associated Press Correspondent Gets Statement Relative to Reason for Air Attack on England.

GERMAN GOVERNMENT SENDS NEW INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO PENDING SETTLEMENT.

Berlin, via London, Feb. 2.—Rumors have circulated here that the Zeppelin raid on England on Monday night, was in reprisal for the Baralong affair, but the Associated Press correspondent in London, in an authoritative circles, that the affair did not come under that head. It is stated that the midland section of England was selected for the raid, because it is the center of the munitions industry and because Liverpool is the center of England's commerce, and there was a purpose to bring home to the people of Britain the fact that the boasted defense of London does not avail against Germany's aircraft and it was intended also to interfere with preparations being made in England for carrying on of British preparations in France and Flanders.

The admiralty's office has no further details to give out regarding the raid, besides those already published, as well as reiterates the positive statement that not a single one of the raiding Zeppelins was injured.

Criticism British Precautions.

London, Feb. 2.—The Times, commenting in a guarded way on the Zeppelin raid, says: "Each new raid discloses some weakness in our preparations. We suggest in the light of Monday night's experience, that the government might well review the methods of dealing with railway traffic in cases of Zeppelin alarms."

"Some dislocation of traffic is inevitable, but necessary steps ought to be taken with the least possible inconvenience to the public, which was not the case on Monday."

A number of trains heavily laden with passengers were suddenly held up wherever they happened to be, and kept standing for hours without explanation. At some stations crowds were allowed to gather, and in others, single bombs dropped in one of a shocking massacre. When it is known that trains will be suspended, it is a matter of public safety to warn the public of the danger in stations. The studied air of mystery thrown over the interruption of traffic on Monday, was calculated to make the public uneasy."

DEMOCRATS NAMED AT CONVENTION TO SERVE AS THE DELEGATES

Dove of Peace Failed to Find Suitable Place on Perch at Gathering in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 2.—It was a most interesting and instructive meeting of democrats that assembled in Milwaukee on Tuesday and placed in nomination four delegates at large and two delegates from each congressional district to represent Wisconsin at the national democratic convention in St. Louis. It could hardly be called a peace meeting, to say the least. In fact the first congressional district kept things in a hum most of the time, and there were other sections of the state that lost no opportunity of doing their share in keeping things moving in anything but a smooth, peaceful channel.

After much discussion and frequent caucuses the following men were endorsed for the various delegations:

For Delegates at Large.

Senator Paul O. Hastings, Mayville. Judge John C. Karel, Milwaukee. George Hilton, Oshkosh. William P. Welch, La Crosse. Mayor M. J. Scholze, Kenosha. For District Delegates.

First district—Stephen F. Weber, Waukesha county; A. F. Stahl, Kenosha county.

Second—Charles H. Weiss, Sheboygan Falls; H. C. Christians, Johnson Creek.

Third—E. J. Reynolds, Dane county; Frank Jones, Iowa county.

Fourth—Jacob Litza, Jr., James L. O'Connor, Milwaukee county.

Fifth—Roland J. Schmitz, V. J. Schonebeck, Jr., Milwaukee.

Sixth—H. C. Borcherdt, Manitowish county; Harry Truesdell, Green Lake county.

Seventh—Charles Burns, La Crosse county; Herman Grotzophorst, Sauk county.

Eighth—George Schutz, Shawano county; J. P. Piffner, Portage county.

Ninth—C. S. Wilcox, Brown county; T. H. C. O'Brien, Outagamie county.

Tenth—F. J. M. White, Pierce county; J. P. Piotrowski, Chippewa county.

Eleventh—G. C. Cooper, Douglas county.

MAY SUBMIT NEW TREATY TO COLOMBIA

SENATE COMMITTEE PROPOSES REDUCTION IN INDEMNITY TO BE PAID FOR PANAMA PARTITION.

SENATE TO ACT SOON

Measure Will Be Presented Shortly With Force of Administration's Latin-American Policy Behind It.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Reducing the proposed payment to Colombia from $25,000,000 to $15,000,000 and altering the proposed apology of the United States for the partition of Panama to make it a mutual expression of regret on the part of the United States and Colombia, the senate foreign relations committee today ordered a favorable report on the long pending Colombian treaty.

The vote was 8 for to 7 against. Senator Clarke of Arkansas was the only democrat voting against it.

By a vote of ten to three the committee also favored the proposed treaty to pay Nicaragua a three million dollar loan for a canal route and naval bases in the Bay of Fonseca.

Is Administration Plan?

The action of the committee today means that the treaty will be brought into the senate for ratification with the full force of the administration behind them, as part of its plan to further harmonious relations with Latin America in consonance with the broad general policy of Pan-Americanism outlined by President Wilson and Secretary Lansing after the recent Pan-American congress here.

The heavy fight is expected over the Colombian treaty. Such a change as the majority of the committee now proposes to make, will necessitate further negotiations with Colombia, which already has accepted the convention on the basis of the United States paying $25,000,000 and expressing regret.

Basis for Opposition.

Some opposition to the treaty is based on the report that Colombia intends to raise the money received from the United States for other operations against Ecuador over a long standing boundary dispute. Pan-American diplomats see a connection between the proposed treaty and the creation of the Federal Reserve bank as the greatest piece of constructive legislation enacted into law in half a century.

President Is Indorsed.

"We commend our great president, Woodrow Wilson, for his insistence upon the principles of justice, and his faith with the people and must be fulfilled."

"We commend him that in these most troublesome times in our nation and in the world's history, he has preserved peace and maintained order and adhered to the rule of strict neutrality."

Approve Neutrality Stand.

"We heartily approve his position respecting neutrality among the warring nations."

"We unqualifiedly approve of his plan for preparedness on land and sea, not for aggression or conquest, but for defense only."

"We unqualifiedly approve of the nomination of Louis F. Brandeis for associate justice of the supreme court, and the nomination of Stephen B. Elkins for chief justice, and we make every effort to have the complete final reports of the commission in industrial relations printed and circulated as a public document."

"The democracy of Wisconsin pledges itself to the renomination and re-election of Woodrow Wilson as president of the United States."

It is probable that William Wolf of La Crosse will make the race for the United States senate against the republican nominee, but who will seek the gubernatorial nomination appears yet to be undecided. There is so much difference of opinion that it would be hard to figure out correctly. Of course resident Wilson and his administration were indorsed. That was expected, and taking it all in all it was a typical democratic convention.

Is Administration Plan?

The action of the committee today means that the treaty will be brought into the senate for ratification with the full force of the administration behind them, as part of its plan to further harmonious relations with Latin America in consonance with the broad general policy of Pan-Americanism outlined by President Wilson and Secretary Lansing after the recent Pan-American congress here.

The heavy fight is expected over the Colombian treaty. Such a change as the majority of the committee now proposes to make, will necessitate further negotiations with Colombia, which already has accepted the convention on the basis of the United States paying $25,000,000 and expressing regret.

Basis for Opposition.

Some opposition to the treaty is based on the report that Colombia intends to raise the money received from the United States for other operations against Ecuador over a long standing boundary dispute. Pan-American diplomats see a connection between the proposed treaty and the creation of the Federal Reserve bank as the greatest piece of constructive legislation enacted into law in half a century.

President Is Indorsed.

"Bad business for you, Seagrue," he said to his companion. "If you can't unload your Colorado and Coast holdings, this thing will put you pretty near out of the game."

Late in the day, when walking past the doors of the library, he saw Holmes, finishing a conference with Rhineland, once more roll up an important document and place it within his safe, set inside the library wall. Seagrue knew too well what it was—the survey of the cut-off, the building of which, by crippling him financially, was likely to wreck his hopes of a career.

It was in this sullen mood that Capelle, a few moments later, encountered him. They had been partners in more than one unscrupulous enterprise and had learned to set value on audacity. A guarded discussion followed. Seagrue moodily rejected one after another of the suggestions of the resourceful Capelle, until one star-

Helen repressed the hall. Capelle nodded toward her. "There's your best bet, Seagrue. Holmes would give his son-in-law anything."

Seagrue looked glum. He hinted he had already tried that out, and fruitlessly, but spurred by his friend's suggestion, he determined on a further effort. After luncheon he attempted to renew his addresses.

But there seemed about the self-willed girl a certain barrier of independence, which, try as he would, he could never penetrate. "What's the matter, Helen?" he demanded at last. "You seem to take everything I say as a joke."

She repressed a little bubble of laughter. "That's the spirit it's meant in, isn't it?"

He was too irritated to be patient. Toward evening he assayed to be serious again; again she lightly evaded his advances.

He barked unconsciously. "I won't stand for safe blowing," he muttered.

"Nothing of the kind suggested," returned Capelle, undaunted. And with the winning smile that marked his face in argument, he continued: "I'll have two good men here by 11:30 to-night, if you say the word. One of them can open a safe by the mere creak of the tumblers. All we want out of it is a copy of the cut-off survey. If we can get hold of that we can get hold of their right of way—most of it must come from Washington—before Holmes knows what's going on. I'll make the copy of their survey myself and return the original to the safe before morning with no one a bit the wiser. Why, see here! You're staying right in the house. All you have to do is to let them in to-night. Are you game? Or are you a whipped dog right now?"

every story like "The Miracle of Life," when its strong theme is impressed by methods peculiar to story and visualization on the screen. Every such story becomes a new word of encouragement and of prophecy, and this particular one is bound to exert a softening and humanizing influence upon all who see it. In many a good woman's heart, especially in early widowhood, when the charm of the honeymoon possesses her soul, there comes a moment of revolt against the surrender of all for the sake of self-denying motherhood. The long-anticipated joys of love seem all too short in hours and days—it is like the end of a golden summer time pressed by the first falling leaves. That moment of revolt may be one of danger, and it so becomes in "The Miracle of Life," when a beautiful young bride is given a potion designed to destroy the seed of life within her and her divine mission as well.

This delicate subject is delicately and beautifully handled through an actual story and through exquisite symbolism. Even the scientific work deserves special mention. Minute attention to details of lighting is brought out by the work in the laboratory, and the tinting leaves no herring note on the long series of spiritual double exposures. The young wife, charmingly impersonated by Margarita Fischer, powerfully so at times, is led through the gardens devoted to baby souls awaiting their turn, nestling in blossoming vines, in the petals of roses, on the leaves of pond lilies. They represent the force that redeems the young wife, that gives energy, breadth and beauty and beauty to the picture story itself. The "Miracle of Life" is shown at the Majestic today only.

ACTOR FIGHTS FOR "DAMAGED GOODS"

Starting Film Play is Made Possible Only By Brave Efforts of Richard Bennett.

"Damaged Goods," the remarkable drama which has now been put into motion pictures only saw the light of day after a desperate fight for its production.

Richard Bennett, the actor who starred in and put on the stage production and who now appears in the motion pictures, played a role of heroism in behalf of humanity when he set out to get the play produced. If he had not won the pictures could not be seen today.

Mr. Bennett, chanced to overhear a conversation in a Broadway cafe one day three years ago. Two diners were discussing a strange play by Eugene Brieux, a French dramatist of note. What Bennett heard led him to get and read the book. He became inspired with the moral mission and the power of the story. He determined to put it on the stage.

It was a long heartbreaking fight that followed. He met obstacles at every step. Two theatres were promised him and then refused when the nature of the startling play was learned. He tried to put it on at a hotel and was turned down. Actors and actresses deserted him. But patience and work triumphed. At last he got a theatre.

The world knows what happened then. The country was swept with a sensation. Men and women fought to get into the playhouse to see this daring preachment of the stage.

The veil of secrecy about the great disease scourge of the race was torn away and the truth was told openly, publicly, frankly for the first time.

Bennett not only won his fight for his worthy purpose, but he won a big material success as well. At last reports Mr. Bennett had derived no less than $400,000 in profits from his production—and he is still collecting royalties.

"Damaged Goods" is a seven reel Mutual special feature photoplay featuring Mr. Bennett and his original Broadway cast of the speaking stage production will be shown here at the Myers Theatre tonight only.

"EXCUSE ME" CLEVER COMEDY

Famous Stage Farce Creates Many Laughs in Picture Form at Majestic.

The Pathe production of Rupert Hughes' famous farce "Excuse Me," brought forth many a hearty laugh last night at the Majestic theatre. The scene of the picture was almost entirely taken on board a "Frisco Overland limited," giving the author and producer a rich opportunity for human contrast and humor offered by the democratic mingling of all sorts and conditions of women and men in the sleeping car. The colored porter, the biased Britisher, the despondent widower, and the foxy clergyman, all did their share in provoking a "fineering smile."

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

There is probably no man appearing on the screen who has more friends than has Henry B. Walthall. His vivid impersonations have a potency of their own and any picture in which he has a role is pretty sure to be well worth seeing. Mr. Walthall was born in Shelby county, Alabama, in 1880, and is a veteran of the Spanish-American war. For several years he was on the legitimate stage. Mr. Walthall is about medium height, has pleasant brown eyes, brown hair which he wears in the opinion of one person, rather too long. He has a nice, whimsical smile and a manner that is pleasant, though a trifle reticent. Married.

"LORD LOVELAND" DISCOVERS AMERICA

"Lord Loveland Discovers America" was released January 27th. This delightfully humorous picture is a production of the story by C. N. and A. M. Williamson has been quite as delightfully directed by Arthur Maude, the distinguished English actor, who himself plays the title role. Mr. Maude is supported by Miss Constance Crawley, the popular dramatic star, who is cast for the role of Lesley Deamer, the American heiress. To New Yorkers especially the setting of "Lord Loveland Discovers America" will be extremely interesting. The tale changes its setting in vivid contrast between the luxurious Waldorf Hotel on the Bowery, "Lord Loveland" discovers America, and in doing so he puts on the screen some of the most interesting bits of New York's show places ever filmed.

Edna May, who since she became the wife of the wealthy Oscar Lewisohn, of New York, in 1907, has been out of the limelight's glare, has succumbed to the lure of the screen. Her contract for a single feature film calls for a salary of $100,000. She will turn the entire sum over to the Red Cross and other charities, she says.

Raymond Hitchcock, who has been a laugh in musical comedies since days of "The Yankee Consul," has yielded to the lure of motion pictures and will be seen at the Princess tonight and Thursday in his first Keystone farce, "My Valet." The comedian has taken with him into the film all that natural humor which has made him so successful in flesh and blood productions. His facial expressions, funny walk and gestures and farcical forelock are all there. With them are Mack Sennett, creator of Keystone comedy, and some of his foremost funmakers and practical jokers, including Mabel Normand and Fred Mace.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 11, 1914.—"My entire body, even my eyelids, was completely covered with blisters as large as a dime. When one would burst water would come from it, and then it would turn into a very painful sore. The itching and itching were something terrible, and I COULD NOT SLEEP FOR IT. I think I had one of the worst cases of eczema a human being ever had. I used eight different kinds of remedies without success. I then tried Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap and it stopped the itching IMMEDIATELY. I gradually noticed a cure for the better. ## The Lone Wolf

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

CHAPTER XXIII.

No Solution.

Because his money was fast ebbing and motives of prudence alone—none more worthy—forbade an attempt to replenish his pocketbook by revisiting the little place in the Rue Roger and realizing on the treasures there, he had determined to have a taximeter fitted to his car and ply for hire until time or chance should settle the question of his future.

Already, indeed, he had complied with the police regulations, received permission to convert his machine into a taxicab, and arranged to have the clock installed.

Leaving his car before noon at the designated depot, he received the promise that it would be ready for him at four o'clock. Returning at that hour, he learned that it couldn't be ready before six. Facing wearily two hours with nothing to do, and too bored and restless to write them away in a cafe, he idled listlessly hither and yon along streets and boulevards—indifferent, in the black melancholy oppressing him, whether or not he were recognized.

In the course of his wanderings he found himself turning from the Rue St. Honore through the Place Vendome to the Rue de la Paix.

Before one corner window Lanyard paused involuntarily.

In that window there was a mirror, set at an angle to one side, and suddenly Lanyard caught its presentment of himself—a gaunt and hungry apparition, with a wolfish air he had never worn when rejoicing in the sobriquet of wolf, his eyes staring with predatory lust.

And lest some passer-by be struck by this betrayal, he turned and moved on hastily.

Half-way across the Boulevard des Capucines, to the east of the Opera, he leaped for his life from a murderous-minded taxicab, found himself temporarily marooned upon one of those islands of safety which the Parisian calls "l'auk-Gods," and stood waiting until an opening should offer in the congestion of traffic and permit him to gain the farther sidewalk.

Presently the policeman in the middle of the boulevard signaled with his little white wand, and the stream of east-bound vehicles checked and began to close up to the right of the crossing, upon which they encroached jealously. A taxicab on the outside, next the island, overshot the mark, and obedient to a curt word from the sergeant, pulled up sharply and began to back into place. Before Lanyard could move round it, its window had drawn opposite him and he was staring in, transfixed by a casual glance.

There was sufficient light to enable him to see clearly the face of the passenger—its pale oval and the eyes whose gaze clung to his with an effect of confused fascination.

She sat quite motionless until one white-gloved hand moved uncertainly toward her bosom.

That brought him to: unconsciously lifting his cap, he stepped back a pace and started to move on.

But at that she bent quickly forward and unlatched the door. It swung wide to him.

Hardly knowing what he was doing, he accepted the mute invitation, stepped into the cab, took the empty seat beside her, and closed the door.

Almost at once the block was lifted, and the car moved on with a jerk, the girl sinking back into her corner with a suggestion of breathlessness, as though the effort she made to seem composed had been almost too much for her strength.

Her face, turned to Lanyard in the half-light, appeared immobile, expressionless; only her eyes were alert with anticipation. But she said nothing.

On his part, Lanyard felt himself hopelessly confounded, in the grasp of emotions that would scarcely suffer him to speak. A great wonder obsessed his mind that she should have opened the door to him no less than that he should have entered through it. Dimly he understood that both had acted without premeditation, and he asked himself: "Was she already regretting that momentary weakness—or whatever it had been?"

"Why did you do that?" he heard himself demand abruptly, and felt that his voice sounded harsh, strained, unnatural.

She stiffened slightly, with a nervous movement of her shoulders.

"Because I saw you."

"Did you want to talk to me, perhaps?" he prompted.

"I was surprised; I had hoped—believed—you had left Paris."

"Does it matter what I think?"

"It does, to me. I wish to know!"

"Well," he conceded reluctantly, "I think that, when you had a chance to think things over calmly, while you waited for me there in the garden, you decided it would be better to—to use your best judgment and—extricate yourself from an embarrassing entanglement."

"But you were wrong!" she protested, vehemently—"quite, quite wrong! I ran away from myself—not from you—and with another motive, too—one that I can't explain."

"You ran away from yourself—not from me?" he repeated, puzzled.

"Don't you understand? Why make it so hard for me? Why make me say outright what pains me so?"

"Oh, I beg of you—"

"But if you won't understand otherwise—I must tell you, I suppose. She checked herself, breathless, flushed, and trembling. "You remember our talk after dinner that night—how I asked you, what if you were to find out you'd been mistaken in me, that I had deceived you; and how I told you it would be impossible for me ever to marry you?"

"I remember," he assented gravely. "It was because of that," she said. "I ran away; because I hadn't been talking idly when I said what I did; because you were mistaken in me, because I was deceiving you, because I could never marry you, and because—suddenly—I came to know that, if I didn't leave you then and there, I might never find the strength to leave you, and only greater suffering and unhappiness could come of it. I had to go, as much for your sake as for mine."

"You mean me to understand that you found me to be beginning to—to care a little for me?"

She made an effort to speak, but in the end answered him only with a dumb inclination of her head.

"And you ran away, then, because love wasn't possible between us?"

Again, silently, she bowed her head.

"Because I had been a criminal, I presume!"

"You've no right to say that—"

"What else can I think? You tell me you were afraid I might induce you to become my wife—something which, for some incomprehensible reason, you claim is impossible. What other explanation can I infer? What other explanation is needed? It's ample, it covers everything, and I've no warrant to complain—God knows!"

"But!" she began, when he cut her short.

"There's one thing I don't understand at all!" he protested. "If that were so, if it was your repugnance for criminal association—why did you go back to Bannion?"

She started and glanced at him furtively, a frightened glance.

"You knew that?"

"I saw you—last night—followed you from the Rue de la Paix to the Elysee Palace hotel."

"And you thought," she flashed in a vibrant voice—"you thought I was in such company of my own choice!"

"You didn't seem altogether downcast," he countered. "Do you wish me to understand he had recaptured you—that you were with him against your will?"

"No," she said slowly. "No; I returned to him voluntarily, knowing perfectly what I was about."

"Does it matter what I think?"

"There is a remedy."

"Through fear or aim—"

"No, I can't claim that."

"Rather than me—"

"You'll never understand," she told him a little wearily. "It was a matter of duty. I had to go back—I had to!"

Her voice trailed off brokenly into a little sob. But as, moved beyond his strength to resist, Lanyard put forth a hand to take the white-gloved one resting on the cushion beside her, she withdrew it with a swift gesture of denial.

"No!" she cried. "Please! You mustn't do that. You only make it harder."

"But you love me!"

"I can't. It's impossible. I would, but may not!"

"Why?"

"I can't tell you."

"If you love me, you must tell me."

She was silent, the white hands working nervously with her handkerchief.

"Lucy!" he insisted—"you must say what stands between you and my love. It's true, I have no right to ask, as I had no right to speak to you of love. But when we have said what we have said—we can't stop there. You will tell me, dear?"

She shook her head. "It—it's impossible," she declared in a choking voice.

"You leave me no alternative," he said—in a voice he hardly knew for his own, so dull and hollow was it in his hearing. "I can only think one thing."

"Think what you must," she said listlessly. "It doesn't matter, so long as you renounce me and put me out of your heart and—leave me!"

BACKACHE AND RHEUMATISM.

Dear Mr. Editor:—

For the benefit of others, I gladly give this statement regarding the merits of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. Am nearly 74 years of age. I suffered from backache, weak back, rheumatism, and could not control the excretion of the kidneys. I can safely say that "Anuric," the new discovery of Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., has done me more real good than anything I have ever taken for these ailments.

I thank him and wish him success in his field of relieving the suffering. Sincerely yours,

Mrs. N. M. Flint.

Note:—Up to this time, "Anuric" has not been on sale to the public, but by the persuasion of many patients and the increased demand for this wonderful healing tablet, Doctor Pierce has finally decided to put it into the drug stores of this country within immediate reach of all sufferers.

Simply ask for Doctor Pierce's Anuric Tablets. There can be no imitation. Every package of "Anuric" is sure to be Dr. Pierce's. You will find the signature on the package just as you do on Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the ever-famous friend to ailing women, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, proven by years to be the greatest general tonic and reconstructer for any one.

At any rate don't give up hope of being cured of your malady until "Anuric" has been tried. Just a few doses have proven that it will make one feel like a different person.

Editor:—Please insert this letter in some conspicuous place in your paper.—Advertisement.

lawyer had hurried to the scene of the disaster. He noticed an old colored man with a badly injured head, and hurried up to him where he lay moaning on the ground.

"How about damages?" began the lawyer.

"G'way, boss, g'way," he said. "I never hit no train. I never done such a thing in all mah life, so help me Gawd! Yo'-cant' git no damages outen me."

Her eyes were not exactly straight and she commented upon it and asked him if he had noticed it.

"Noticed it, man!" he replied. "Why, she is so cross-eyed that recently when I sat next to her at dinner she ate off my plate."

"Good cooks ask such high wages now that few people can afford to keep one."

"Have one of the best in town, and don't play her any wages, either, nor give her a single day off."

"How do you manage it?"

"I married her."

She—Do you remember that you once proposed to me and that I refused you?

He—Yes; that is one of life's most beautiful memories.
